What is the AsyncAPI Conference?

What is it?

The AsyncAPI Conference is the official event created by the AsyncAPI Initiative. This conference is aimed primarily at the community. The program's main objective is to share and exchange existing users' experiences with new community members, facilitating their integration and knowledge about the project.

The program will encompass real examples, use cases, AsyncAPI specifications, tools in action, and contributors' experience, which are the most requested topics by the community. Without any limit set, the idea is to encourage submitters to share any knowledge, experience, or proposal.

You can find more information here.

Why become a sponsor?

AsyncAPI is the open industry standard for defining asynchronous APIs. A project that advocates the freedom of tools and the freedom of users. To support an open-source project is to facilitate the work of a community working to create democratizing tools.

To support the AsyncAPI Conference is to foster a growing initiative shaped by, and for its community.

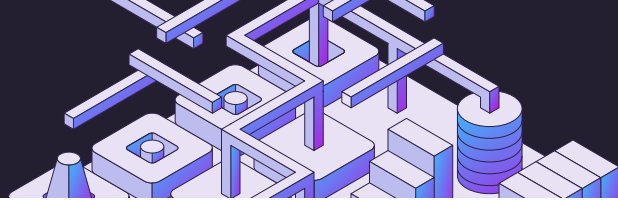

Ultimately, the project belongs to the community and will continue to belong to the collaborators. They are the people who dedicate their time, effort, and love to AsyncAPI.
